TRIAL

OF
COLONEL A. BURR.

(Continued by adjournment and held at the Capitol in the Hall of the House of Delegates,) for High Treason against the U. States.

OPINION

Of the Court on the motion to arrest the evidence. Delivered on

The first position is to be decided by the indictment itself. The court understands the allegation differently from the attorney for the United States. The court understands it to be directly charged, that the prisoner did assemble with the multitude and did march with them. Nothing will more clearly test this construction than putting the case into a shape which it may possibly take. Suppose the law to be that the indictment was defective unless it alleged the presence of the person indicted at the fact of treason. If upon a special verdict facts should be found which amounted to a laying of war by the accused, and his counsel should insist that he could not be condemned because the indictment was defective in not charging that he was himself one of the assemblage which constituted the treason, or because it alleged the procurement defectively, would the attorney admit this construction of his indictment to be correct? I am persuaded that he would not, and that he ought not to make such a concession. If after a verdict, the indictment ought to be construed to allege that the prisoner was one of the assemblage at Blennerhassett's island, it ought to be so construed now. But this is unimportant, for if the indictment alleges that the prisoner procured the assemblage, that procurement becomes part of the overt act and must be proved as will be shown hereafter.

The 2d position is founded on 1 Hale 214, 238 & 1. East 127.

While I declare that this doctrine contradicts every idea I had ever entertained on the subject of indictments, since it admits that one case may be stated and a very different case may be proved, I will acknowledge that it is countenanced by the authorities adduced in its support. To counsel or advise a treasonable assemblage, and to be one of that assemblage, are certainly distinct acts, and therefore ought not to be charged as the same act. The great objection to this mode of proceeding is, that the proof essentially varies from the charge in the character and essence of the offence, and in the testimony by which the accused is to defend himself. These dicta of lord Hale, therefore, taken in the extent in which they are understood by the counsel for the U. S. seem to be repugnant to the declarations we find every where, that an overt act must be laid and must be proved. No case is cited by Hale in support of them, and I am strongly inclined to the opinion that, had the public received his corrected, instead of his original manuscript, they would, if not expunged, have been restrained in their application to cases of a particular description. Laid down generally, and applied universally to all cases of treason, they are repugnant to the principles for which Hale contends, for which all the elementary writers contend, and from which courts have in no case, either directly reported or referred to in the books, ever departed. These principles are, that the indictment must give notice of the offence, that the accused is only bound to answer the particular charge which the indictment contains, and that the overt act laid is that particular charge. Under such circumstances, it is only doing justice to Hale to examine his dicta, and if they will admit of being understood in a limited sense, not repugnant to his own doctrines, nor to the general principles of law, to understand them in that sense.

"If many conspire to counterfeit, or counsel or abet it, and one of them doth the fact upon that counselling or conspiracy, it is treason in all, and they may be all indicted for counterfeiting generally within this statute, for in such case in treason all are principals."

This is laid down as applicable singly to the treason of counterfeiting the coin, and is not applied by Hale to other treasons. Had he designed to apply the principle universally he would have stated it as a general proposition, he would have laid it down in treating on other branches of the statute as well as in the chapter respecting the coin, he would have laid it down when treating on indictments generally. But he has done neither. Every sentiment bearing in any manner on this point, which is to be found in Lord Hale, while on the doctrine of levying war, or on the general doctrine of indictments, militates against the opinion that he considered the proposition as more extensive than he has declared it to be. No court could be justified in extending the dictum of a jury beyond its terms, to cases in which he has expressly treated, to which he has not himself applied it, and on which he as well as others had delivered opinions which that dictum would overrule. This would be the less justifiable if there should be a clear legal distinction indicated by the very terms in which the judge has expressed himself between the particular case in which alone he has applied the dictum, and other cases to which the court is required to attend it.

Account of the profit and loss upon a flock of Sheep wintered at Clermont, in 1806-7.

The flock consisted of Six full bred Merino sheep, twenty four three fourths bred, thirty half bred, and seventeen common sheep of good quality. They were kept in one flock and treated alike in every respect. The full bred were two rams and four ewes, one of the ewes died in February a lambing. She was eight years old. Two ewes lambed in March, the other was a yearling and had not taken a ram. 28th May the five sheep were shorn and gave 28 3/4 lbs. of wool. They had not been washed, but as they were well littered in the fold, and kept out except at night, the wool was not so foul as common.

I have myself, however, purchased three quarter bred ewes at 7 dollars, and sold my half bloods at 12 dollars. I value the seven eighths at 40 dollars, the ewes, and 50 for the rams. Taking the average at 15 dols. for the whole 22 lambs, it would amount to $400. to be added to the account of profits.

Loss, if lambs are not credited, 1 12 9

15 lambs at 12s. £9 0 0

Two things will require explanation in the above statement. 1st. The quality of wool given by my Merinoes, and next the low price at which I sold the wool of the three quarter bred sheep.

It will seem extraordinary that five merinoes should have given twenty eight lbs. and three quarters of wool which is near six pounds, and would probably amount to about four pounds of washed wool per head. But it is to be considered that these were chosen, or bred from those that were chosen with care out of a flock of two hundred that were themselves an improved stock. For it is an undoubted fact that the merinoes of the national flock have greatly improved in France by care and attention; that they are larger and yield more wool (with the latter having deteriorated) than the merinoes of Spain. This is a very encouraging circumstance and the rather as I can add from my own experience that the French merinoes improve here when well kept. That there is no error in my statement is clear from this circumstance. Mr. Booth purchased the wool and weighed it a second time himself, after it had been weighed by my overseer, their accounts agreeing exactly.

Though the wool of the fourth breed of sheep was only sold at five shilling, yet it was worth at least eight, since it was in most of the fleeces, nearly as fine as that of a full bred sheep. But as this was the first time I had sold the wool, and Mr. Booth took all I had, I gave it to him at the price that he put upon that of the half blood sheep. I should mention here that Mr. Dean informs me that the five lambs he had of me, have given him five pounds of washed wool per head, which he can sell to the Hatters at eight shillings per pound so that had they been purchased only for the wool they would have yielded about 30 per cent. on the capital.

Though in the above statement I have credited the wool below its real value, and at the price at which I sold it, yet even at these prices, the contrast between the merino, and the common sheep is sufficiently obvious to induce every intelligent farmer to change his stock as fast as he can do it, with convenience, and without too much expense. With respect to speaking of the full blood which it would be difficult as yet to procure, I will contrast the half bloods with the common sheep kept with them, and fed exactly alike. My half bloods gave in wool 11s. 10d per head profit after paying 12s. for their keeping; whereas the keeping of the common sheep, amounting to a fraction more than 1s. and 10d per head beyond the value of their wool making a difference of 13s. and 3d per head, between the profit of half bred merinoes and common sheep, supposing the lambs both equal in value, though in fact the difference in the value of the sheep must necessarily extend to the lambs, and render the contrast still more striking. Let any agriculturalist make the calculation on a flock of one hundred wethers of each sort, and conviction must stare him in the face. One hundred common wethers would give if well kept 250 lbs. washed wool worth 3s. per pound 52l. 10s. The same number of half bred merinoes would yield at least 400 lbs. worth 8s. or 160l. Deduct the keeping at 12s and the merino flock affords a clear profit of 100l. while the loss upon the common sheep amounts to 7l. 10s. They are then a losing stock till sold to the butchers, and then if killed at 3 years old, do not give 7s a year profit per head. Thus if sold at they are worth 300l; from this must be deducted the annual loss for three years 22l. 13s. leaving an ultimate clear profit of $243 25. at the end of three years, during which time the owner has been paying an annual loss, with the interest of which the flock should be charged. While on the other hand the half blood merinoes will obtain the same price from the butcher at the end of three years, & will in the meantime have paid an annual profit of 100l. yearly for the interest of which the flock should be credited, and if sold in the winter when their fleeces are grown, will give an additional profit of 200 dollars, beyond the common sheep sold under similar circumstances.

Who is there that does not feel the difference between receiving 100l. yearly and waiting 3 years before your capital produces any thing? It may be said the merinoes are less profitable from want of size, as animals of the same species, generally speaking, eat in proportion to their size. I think there is no weight in this objection if it was really founded. But one I can say, that if my sheep of the full and common breed were weighed against any common flock of equal number, they would outweigh them. They are certainly heavier and better woolled than any other sheep that I have seen, except some of the English breeds. We should add the merino will yield a greater profit if kept seven years, whereas, every year a common sheep is kept after he is fit for the butcher is so much loss, inasmuch as the wool does not pay for his keeping.

These observations, founded upon undeniable facts, are so striking that I hope to see this useful breed of sheep as much encouraged as it deserves to be, and I deem it a very happy circumstance, that the introduction of them by colonel Humphreys into Connecticut from Spain, and by myself from France in the same year, into this state, furnish the intelligent farmer with means for the gradual change of his flock, which may be effected by the purchase of three quarter and half blooded rams, whose fleeces alone will annually pay 30 per cent. upon the price they cost, so that in fact, the change may be wrought without any expense, and for a trifling advance of money. I am satisfied that even the introduction of one quarter Spanish blood into a flock will improve the fleece to the value of 5s. so that instead of losing annually 1s. 10d. on the wool of every sheep, in the flock, 3s. 1d. will be gained; and a ram who will cost about 3l. more than a good common ram will add 12l. 10s. yearly, to the value of a flock consisting of 50 ewes.

ROBERT R. LIVINGSTON.

FOREIGN.

DRESDEN, July 18.

His majesty the emperor sat off from Königsberg, the 13th at 6 o'clock in the evening, and arrived on the 14th at noon, at Marienwerder, where he staid an hour. At 12 o'clock the same evening he passed through Posen, where he remained two hours; during which he received the civil officers of the Polish government.

On the 16th at noon, he arrived at Glogau, and on the 17th, at seven in the morning, at Bauzen, first town of the kingdom of Saxony, where he was received by the king. These two sovereigns conversed together for some time in the mansion house of the bishop; the king entered into the emperor's carriage, they arrived together at Dresden, and alighted at the palace. This day, at 6 in the morning, the emperor mounted on horseback to survey the environs of Dresden.

The sentiments which his majesty found in Saxony, are similar to those that have been expressed to him on the whole of his way in Poland; an immense concourse of people crowded together every where on his passage.

TONNINGEN, July 27.

Extract of a letter from lord Falkland, commander of the blockade ship Quebec.

"With respect to the letter from Messrs. Stoppel & Co. I have to state that I have received recent orders to consider the ports of Altona and Gluckstadt, in a state of blockade, that no vessels of any description with cargoes in, will be allowed to go up the Elbe, and that neither wine, spirits, or liquors of any kind will be allowed to pass the Watten on any account whatever."

PHILADELPHIA, September 22.

We understand that the board of health, in consequence of information of the unhealthy condition of Charleston and Savannah, have directed that all vessels arriving from those ports, shall come to the Lazaretto, and be subject to all the necessary quarantine regulations.

Extract of a letter from John M. Forbes, esquire, consul for Hamburg, to a merchant in this city, dated Tonnigen, 15th July.

"I have, however, great pleasure in stating I have received an official communication from his Britannic majesty's consul general Mr. Cockburn, by which permission is given to neutral vessels, coming from neutral places and laden with neutral cargoes and bound to the ports of Gluckstadt or Altona, to enter the Elbe, and proceed to those ports and to depart again with neutral cargoes for neutral places. The terms of the communication are general, and imply no prohibition of any merchandise except contraband of war, yet doubts have arisen, whether provisions, liquors and tobacco, excluded by previous orders, would not still find difficulty.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 24.

The citizens of this town were this morning alarmed by the cry of FIRE! It proved to be in a bake house belonging to Mr.
M. Miller, which was entirely consumed with its contents.

An explosion of a quantity of powder at Luxembourg has ruined upwards of two hundred families.

We are concerned to state that a vessel arrived on Sunday at the Lazaretto, from Savannah, several of whose hands are ill of the Yellow Fever, and one died on being landed at the Lazaretto. We have a perfect reliance on the prudence and activity of our board of health, who will no doubt adopt every necessary precaution to guard against the inroad of this dreadful disease.

[Philadelphia paper.

Accounts from Halifax say, the men of war's-men, agents, &c. there, are nearly as hot for war with the United States, as some folks in the U. States pretend to be with the British—One expects plunder on sea, the other plunder and promotion by land!

A London paper of August 9 says—"The situation of the Treaty between England and America is not known—The Americans, we are told insist, that Great-Britain shall relinquish the right to search American vessels for persons; and our government oppose the doctrine—If the dispute cannot be settled War must ensue; and as we expect a peace

Laird from an officer of the United States,

"I have this day seen T. Bates, esq. the acting governor of this territory. He appears to be apprehensive of some hostile intentions of the Indians on the Mississippi above this. He thinks the detachment of the United States' troops arrived here in very good time to check or damp them.
The British agents and traders on the Mississippi and the Missouri rivers are I am certain doing every thing in their power to make the Indians unfriendly to the U. S."

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in the Western country, to his friend in Philadelphia, dated Aug. 31, 1807.

"Nothing material has transpired since I wrote you last, except much alarm has been excited in the back settlements, from disaffected Indians of several nations and appears to increase with some foundation. Last night arrived here an express from Urbana, stating the apprehensions of the people in general, and the movements and positions of the Indians in various quarters, which appear not very pacific; there are upwards of 11 or 1200 embodied and armed, within the vicinity of fort Wayne, and several other tribes in different parts of the country, which are chiefly composed of the Chipaway, Powtowatatoy and Shawnee. Indians, they have been encouraged and allured of late to come into the settlement to see a Prophet, as he is termed, who boasts of supernatural power, and pretends great friendship in advocating their cause, and tells they have an equal right to all the country round; but the chiefs give no credit to the stories proposed of his miracles and powers."

Extract of a letter from a commercial house at St. Thomas, dated 24th August.

Our market for provisions has been dull for some time owing to an embargo being laid on those articles by the government; but as the alarm about an embargo in America seems to have subsided, they have concluded to permit the exportation of those articles again. We are in hopes it will make business brisk again in a few days.

Commercial Correspondence.

We have received the following communication from a correspondent in Havan-na.

Havanna, August 21.

DEAR SIR,

WE are sorry to acquaint you of an additional duty being levied here upon the importation of all goods, wares and merchandise, of four per cent. except upon articles of fixed valuation which are affected in a smaller degree by this augmentation. Upon all these the increase is a bout 22 per cent. on the amount of duty quoted in our prices current. And upon all exports, of the produce of this island, there is an additional duty of two per cent. Thus the rates of the duties, as they now stand, are 38 per cent. upon imports, and 12 1/2 per cent. upon exports, and payable from and after the 20th instant.

Yours, &c.

In the case of fire the following is suggested to those who may be employed in its extinction. As heat and smoke ascend to the upper part of the room, a stream of pure air occupies a space near the floor, a person can crawl on his hands and knees into a room full of smoke, and by putting his face close to the floor, he may go and return where no one could walk upright.
This method is practised by the London firemen, who have hence acquired the name of Salamanders.
